BOUGHT HIS SWEETHEARTS CHILD. Novel Procedure of a Discarded Suitor In

CHATTANOGGA, Oct. 14.—Johnny Martin, a ten-year-old lad, accompanied by Joseph Burns, of Chicago, passed through this city on their way to the West. The boy told the fellowing story: "My name is Johnny Martin, I live in Atlanta with my mamma and Mamma used to cry, and then she would papa. Mamma used to cry, and pick me up and hold me, big as I am, and pick me up and hold me, big as I am, and then she would cry some more. One day a big man with brown whiskers came, and he said: 'Now, I will give you $200 and take the boy home with me and adopt him,' but you are to sign away all claims on him.' I heard him say it, and told him I didn't want to be adopted, and I wouldn't be adopted, but mamma made me go with the big man, and I saw him give her some money. My papa had been sick ever so long and didn't have any money. The big man took me and got me some new clothes and new shoes and a new hat, and ever so many things, and he told me that he didn't haveany little boy and that he knowed my mamma when she was a little girl, and that he came very near being my mamma's husband, and that I was his boy now. I cried, and he told me I could go back to my mamma when I wanted to, but we would go way off to Chicago and mamma would come." It is a remarkable case. A discarded suitor marries, and being rich and childless, buys the son of his former sweetheart, who parts with him on account of her poverty and the sickness of her husband. lig man with brown whiskers came, and he
